Entering architectural and design education is a sensitive transition for students. The students have to be oriented towards the method of doing architecture as that which involves both science and art, as well as the grit and mettle required for pursuing this professional course.

In order induce students and help smoothen their transition into architecture a guest lecture on Architectural practice was organized by Ar. Nivedita Fadnis, Coordinator for B.Arch. First Year. The speaker addressed to topics such as what is architecture, what are the important approaches and attitudes a student should have for earnestly pursuing architecture, the importance of sketching in translating ideas into drawings and also developing confidence in one's own work.
