Women's Day Celebration 8th March'2025

The Women's Day celebration at Symbiosis School of Planning, Architecture, and Design (SSPAD), Nagpur, was a heartfelt and memorable event that honoured the contributions and achievements of women in the institute. The celebration, though simple, was thoughtfully organized to make the day special for all the women on campus.

The event began on a sweet note, with a delightful surprise for all the women in the institute. Each woman was gifted a chocolate, symbolizing appreciation and warmth, which brought smiles to their faces and set a cheerful tone for the day.

The main celebration was held in the Conference Room, where a series of interactive games were organized exclusively for the female staff and students. The games were designed to foster camaraderie, laughter, and a sense of togetherness among the participants. Dr. Nandini Kulkarni, the Director of SSPAD, played a pivotal role in encouraging everyone to participate wholeheartedly. She not only motivated the women to join in the fun but also actively participated in the games herself, making the event even more engaging and inclusive.

The atmosphere was filled with joy and enthusiasm as the women bonded over the games, sharing laughter and creating lasting memories. The celebration was a testament to the institute's commitment to recognizing and appreciating the invaluable role women play in the academic and professional community.

The event concluded with refreshments, where everyone enjoyed a variety of snacks and beverages. The informal setting allowed for further interaction and camaraderie, bringing the celebration to a perfect end.

Overall, the Women's Day celebration at SSPAD was a simple yet meaningful event that truly made the women of the institute feel valued and appreciated. It was a day filled with joy, laughter, and togetherness, leaving everyone with cherished memories and a sense of pride in being part of such a supportive and inclusive community.
